EBOLA AT EMORY: patients to populations

How I Treat Ebola
Dr. Lyon was one of the attending physicians who treated the Ebola-infected patients at Emory University Hospital. He will explain how he and the Emory team approached this complex medical challenge. Dr. Lyon is an Associate Professor in the Division of Infectious Diseases at Emory University School of Medicine.

Followed by an Expert Panel

How We Prevent Ebola
Emory public health experts will discuss the global challenges posed by the disease.

Friday September 19, 2014
12:15 – 1:30 p.m. (lunch at noon)
Woodruff Health Sciences Center Administration Building (WHSCAB) Auditorium
For questions gary.miller@emory.edu