The Southern Regional Council on Graduate Education (SRCGE) has just completed a year of operations in which we have developed an innovative and effective program to enhance the quality of graduate education in the Southeast. Our goal has been to provide a means of sharing information and experiences among the universities and colleges in our region. We have sought to create a forum where faculty and administrators can exchange ideas and strategies for improving graduate education.

Our program has included workshops, seminars, and colloquia on topics such as graduate admissions, financial aid, and curriculum development. We have also facilitated the development of new programs and initiatives to support graduate students.

We are grateful to all those who have contributed to the success of the SRCGE and look forward to building on our achievements in the years to come.

Thank you for your support.
